Scott Inglis-Kidger

Hailed by Classic FM as a “rising star of the choral world”, Scott Inglis-Kidger is renowned for his passion and dedication as a conductor and vocal coach.

He read Music at the University of Cambridge and sang in the world famous King's College Choir as a countertenor. He is the founder and director of the professional vocal ensemble Platinum Consort, giving concerts, hosting choral workshops and offering a unique boy chorister programme.

He has worked as a vocal consultant with groups such as the Scottish Chamber Choir, Exeter Festival Chorus and St Albans Choral Society.

Scott has guest conducted the Orchestra of the Age of Enlightenment. He made his conducting debut with the Hanover Band earlier this year.

Cutting his teeth straight out of Cambridge as a Director of Music and Master of Choristers in two London prep schools, Scott continues to inspire and encourage singers of all ages.

We welcome applications from singers of all ages with some sight-reading ability, and we are certain you will enjoy the unique experience of working with such a prestigious choral conductor and composer.

The day will culminate in an informal concert in Wingrave Parish Church
